Financial Services Case Study

PM-Partners group Advisory Services

Challenge: Need to baseline project management related skillsets and capabilities to assist in determining whether the correct resource model was in place for effective project delivery.

Solution: PM-Partners were engaged to perform a maturity assessment across the customer project management community. A review of initial assessment results and senior stakeholder interviews found that the project management community were effectively skilled, however other project manager environmental aspects such as stakeholder engagement, communications and governance were identified as requiring additional focus in order to improve project outcomes.

PM-Partners is continuing to work with the client on these challenges.

Benefit: Report outcomes are reviewed across the business with the view to have a roadmap for addressing the challenges. This has resulted in the PMO achieving the right level of executive engagement.
