Extended Project Workforce

Our client required a flexible model that provided a capability for their customers' large complex programmes of work. They were experiencing an increase in 'red' projects across their portfolio due to unskilled staff running key projects.

PM-Partners group worked with them to provide a flexible, extended workforce of skilled practitioners (a team of 30+ people) who worked with their largest clients to deliver the required outcomes across the region.

This resulted in a reduction of 'red' projects across the portfolio, 100s of projects successfully completed, as well as minimising bench time of costly resources.

APAC PMO Transformation

PM-Partners group provided PMO Management across the APAC region under a global programme of work to outsource all data centres, networks and communications including helpdesk support and applications. Under this role we also provide several other capabilities, including Transformation Programme Management and the UNIX Engineer projects.

We provided programme management capabilities on the Data Centre Transformation piece of the APAC Programme. Our Programme Manager was responsible for assessing the current state and working with the customer on classifying all the servers and applications and deciding how they would be transformed, planning for transformation, delivering the transformation and ensuring a speedy and seamless transition to the client in the Future Mode of Operation.

The outcome of PM Partner's involvement was:

- » Reduction of red projects across the portfolio
- » 100s of projects successfully completed
- » Minimised bench time of costly resources
- » Acquiring a managed bench of skilled practitioners to assist their largest clients to deliver the required outcomes across the region.

"PM-Partners group has run several high profile and business critical internal projects including the re-establishment of a complete, profitable and sustainable maintenance and spares logistics business. PM-Partners had an active management role for this high impact business project involving the analysis of the business issues, risk assessment and management, negotiations with suppliers, development of action plans and active management of these plans through to successful completion. I have no hesitation in recommending PM-Partners group."
